

Tormechi Chambliss

My name is Tormechi Chambliss, and I have been a nurse for 17 years with experience in medical/surgical, cardiac ICU and telemetry, radiology nursing, endoscopy, and case management. I have been in the faculty role at GCSU since 2020, starting as the Skills lab coordinator for the school of nursing. I graduated in 2007 with an associate degree in nursing from Macon State College, then completed the RN-BSN program at Georgia College & State University. I received a bachelor's degree in 2018 and a master's in nurse education in 2021. While pursuing my master's degree, I worked as a graduate assistant in the School of Nursing for the 2019-2020 academic year. I am currently in the dissertation phase of my research for my PhD degree at Georgia State University. My research involves female veterans with PTSD and how stigma, resiliency, PTSD symptomology, and perceived threat affect their help-seeking intentions for PTSD.

I am married with three children, two girls both 17 years old (one a senior and one a junior), and one son who is 10. I also have a miniature schnauzer. I enjoy reading my Bible and when I have time, watching anything related to crime mysterious or cold cases.
